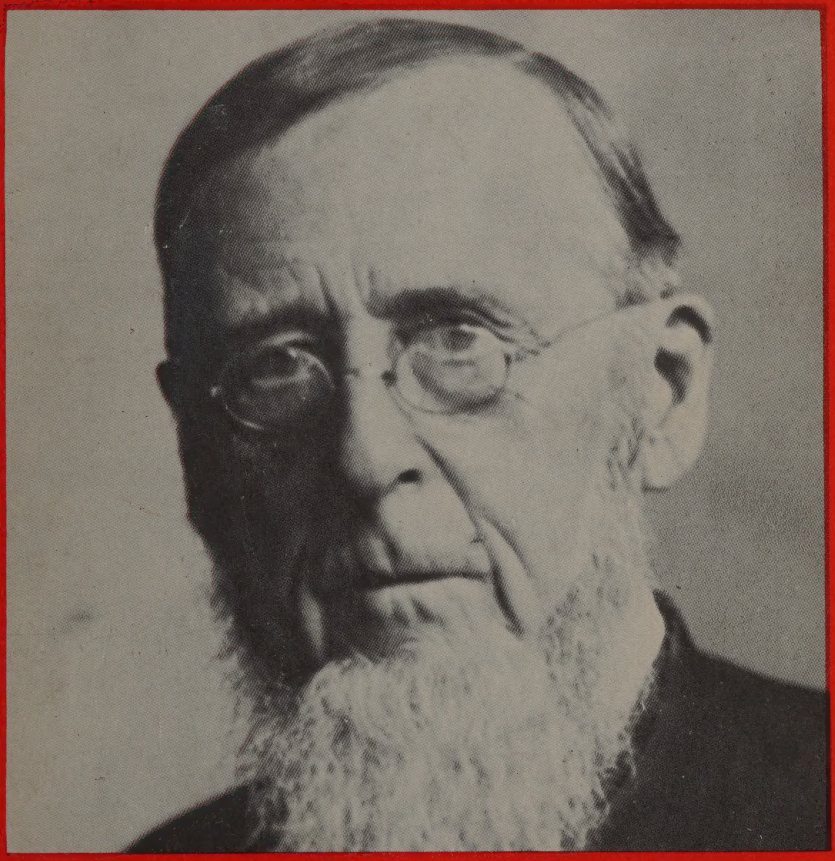
MENNONITE YEARBOOK



1980

The cover photo: This year marks the fiftieth anniversary of the death of John Fretz Funk (1835-1930). Perhaps more than any person Funk put his stamp on the Mennonite Church in North America as we know it today. For a detailed account read J. C. Wenger's essay, "A Father in Israel," on pages 8 and 9.

Foreword

We are pleased to present to you the 1980 Mennonite Yearbook. This volume includes information about the many aspects of the organizational life of the Mennonite Church from local congregations to conferences to churchwide boards to worldwide bodies and activities.

We begin the decade of the '80s with a reflection on the contribution of John F. Funk (see front cover and article on page 8), whose legacy to the church still continues 50 years after his death. General Secretary of the Mennonite Church General Board Ivan Kauffmann summarizes the approach and development of church life in the '70s with a projection of the agenda for the '80s (see article on page 6).

The usual features of the Yearbook are continued, with only minor changes reflected in this volume. Regular users will note: (1) The name of county is now included in the conference listing rather than the region. Other aspects of the regional listing continue as carried in 1979. (2) Gulf States Fellowship is a new conference added to the conference section. This fellowship formalizes the working relationships of nine congregations in the Louisiana and Mississippi area which had been growing together for the past several years. (3) In the organization section efforts have been made to streamline the listings of historical libraries and archives, campgrounds, and schools. A new listing under Mennonite Board of Missions is Urban Church Organizations. This brings together in one place those organizations serving the urban areas. (4) In all sections efforts have been made to strengthen the listings of previous years.

As the decade of the '80s begins, total membership of the 1,222 Mennonite Church congregations stands at 107,770. This indicates a very modest increase over the total reported one year ago. This slow growth illustrates the fact that more conferences no longer include in their figures members affiliated with the General Conference Mennonite Church. (See I, IM, IN, O, OH, and SW conferences.) Since these had been included earlier, this change does result in a more precise membership picture. Conferences reflecting 5% and above membership gains includes: Rocky Mountain (RM), 5% (from 1,324 to 1,391); Southeastern Mennonite (SM), 5.2% (from 671 to 708); Conservative—York-Adams (YA), 5.7% (from 230 to 244); Mennonite Christian Brotherhood (CB), 7% (from 290 to 312); Conservative Fellowship (CF), 10% (from 446 to 496); and Mid-Atlantic (MA), 36% (from 225 to 354). Those with membership gains of 4% are Conservative (CM), Southeast Convention (SE), and Franklin Mennonite Conference (FR). (See Table II)

The membership total of the overseas churches stands at 32,877. This is an increase of 15% over the total reported one year ago. Churches with an above 15% growth are Nicaragua 17% (from 116 to 138); Tanzania 18% (from 8,872 to 10,866); Belize 18% (from 116 to 142); Costa Rica 19% (from 335 to 416); Honduras 27% (from 875 to 1,200); and Kenya 37% (1,200 to 1,890) (See Table V.) Worldwide membership now stands at 640,000. This is a gain of 4% (from 614,000) since the 1979 report (see Table VII).

While most entries remain the same year after year, the Yearbook is intended to be a dynamic tool to reflect the current situation of the church. Thus some features are expanded, while others are shortened; some are added and others are dropped. In any case the purpose of the Yearbook is to meet the needs of each reader. The editor welcomes suggestions for improvements for increased usefulness. In this way the Yearbook can remain an effective, useful tool to facilitate the common life, faith, and witness of the Mennonite Church.

As the '80s begin we again wish to thank each one for providing updated, corrected data. These careful efforts make it possible for all to contribute of themselves and their resources for Christ, the Lord of the church, in whose name we are redeemed and under whom we serve the needy world in which we live.—JEH

Out of the '70s—Into the '80s

The Mennonite Church 1980

By Ivan J. Kauffmann
General Secretary, Mennonite Church General Board

Introduction

"It was he who gave some to be apostles, some to be prophets, some to be evangelists and some to be pastors and teachers, to prepare God's people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up until we all reach unity in the faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God and become mature, attaining the full measure of perfection found in Christ" (Ephesians 4:11-13, NIV).

In the past ten years the Mennonite Church has come to a greater awareness that the body of Christ is given a variety of gifts for the purpose of helping all members participate in the life and work of the church in ways that help one another to maturity and Christlikeness. We are learning that the leaders of the church are not to do the work of the church alone, but are to lead and enable the members to effectively participate in the total effort.

In an effort to learn this important truth, we may have leaned too far in another direction. Because of a reaction against strong authority of pastor-centered congregations we have tended to neglect the need for assertive leadership. Some would say that a leader is not necessary, or that it can be shared by various ones in the group. But we are now hearing the call for leaders who can point the way, and help us as a group to work together at those things which help us to be faithful in our following of Christ.

The Seventies

The seventies began with the Study Commission on Church Organization working at a new structure for the Mennonite Church in Canada and the United States. The churchwide organization then was known as Mennonite General Conference, and did not formally include all the churchwide boards or all the district conferences. In August 1971 at Kitchener, Ontario, Mennonite General Conference was formally terminated, and a new organization which included all Boards and all district conferences in Canada and the United States was adopted.

The new General Assembly of 300 delegates, which meets biennially, became the official denominational body to represent the constituency. It has now met for the fifth time, the last time being at Waterloo, Ontario, in August of 1979. Its meetings are increasing in meaning and interest. The role of General Assembly continues to emerge with greater clarity.

The new organization was developed at a time when the district conference structure appeared to be weakening. That was regarded as a sign that congregations needed a different kind of structure in which congregations would participate. So the new organization provided for a regional-style structure with regional assemblies to which congregations would send delegates. It also proposed that congregations would relate in small clusters in local areas.

In the seventies we saw that the conferences did not go out of existence nor did the church adapt itself to the proposed regional structure. Instead conferences were aroused to a more active involvement. Many prefered to have the churchwide work done at the conference level.

The General Assembly, upon recommendation of the General Board, recognized the apparent role of the conferences in our church structure by changing the Board membership to include conference representation rather than members at large and regional appointees.

The number of conferences continued to increase. When the seventies began there were 18 of them which participated in General Assembly, and that number has increased to 22. This includes 946 congregations with 95,150 members. There are also 11 conferences with 156 congregations and 6,723 members who have declined the invitation to participate in General Assembly. In addition, there are 92 congregations with 5,088 members who are not affiliated with a conference.

The new church organization emphasized the congregation as the primary group in our structure. This was not to be understood as extreme congregationalism because the need for congregational interdependence and broader relationships was also clearly emphasized. The constituency is continuing to adapt itself to this stance.

The Mennonite Church has increased in size by 13 percent in the seventies. Membership grew from 94,270 to 106,961. The most rapid growth has taken place in the black and Latin congregations. The black and integrated congregations now total 50 with 2,253 members which represents a 70 percent increase in ten years. By the end of 1979 there will be 50 Latin congregations with about 1,500 members.

Giving increased during the seventies by 162 percent. The 1969 Yearbook reported a total of $13,187,168 contributed via the congregational treasurer for all congregational, conference, and churchwide causes. This amounted to $136 per member. The 1979 Yearbook reported a total of $34,567,901, which amounted to $324 per member. Increased resources, inflation, larger conference and churchwide programs, as well as a growing awareness of stewardship responsibility were reasons for this large increase.

The Eighties

As the eighties begin, the Mennonite Church finds itself with many resources, opportunities, and challenges. There are many needs for witness and service in our midst and around the world. The task ahead is a large one, and there is need for the total church to be involved.

Estes Park 77 and Waterloo 79 helped to focus the attention of the church on Urban Concerns. We were reminded that in the past 100 years we had been a rural church, but that more and more we are becoming an urban church. This trend will continue more rapidity.

John I. Smucker, a pastor in New York for over 20 years, points out that there are more than 250 urban congregations in the Mennonite Church. Forty of them are "hard-core" inner-city, eighty of them are outer city (just a little further out from inner city), seventy of them are suburban, and sixty of them are in smaller communities which were once rural but are now surrounded by the city. Who can deny that we are changing from rural to urban? Knowing that we are more urban than ever before is not going to automatically cause the church to function from an urban perspective or to meet the needs of its urban congregations. It will take prayerful effort and commitment to meet this challenge.The task may seem large, but God is able to use the faithful witness and service of His people to build the church of Christ.

In response to the call for leadership, the church is now giving special attention to a study of that issue. A task force has prepared a study document on "Leadership and Authority in the Life of the Church." The 1979 General Assembly gave preliminary endorsement to the statement and recommended it for study by the total church. A study guide has been prepared for helping conference groups and congregations to understand the issues involved. After receiving feedback from the constituency, the task force will revise the statement and bring it to General Assembly (1981 or 1983) for final approval as a statement of the Mennonite Church.

At Waterloo 79 the Council on Faith, Life, and Strategy proposed a set of goals for the eighties. They were presented in the following general statements.

CHRISTOLOGY 1. To develop a Christology that deals with distorted and partial understandings of the person and work of Christ and sets forth implications for discipleship.

SPIRITUAL LIFE 2. To achieve a clearer understanding of the forms of spirituality and piety that are consistent with our biblical and historical roots, that facilitate the continual renewal of the wellsprings for spirituality, and that help us discern the authentic and the unauthentic while appreciating meaningful variety.

PEACEMAKING 3. To articulate a stance for the church in the world which coordinates the convictions for radical discipleship and mission with the realities of social involvement and sense of responsibility for the world.

To implement strategies for confronting evil that avoid both passive noninvolvement and inconsistent methods of action.

MISSION 4. To clarify the implications of our theology of mission and current experience for structure, strategy, and allocation of resources.

CHURCH GROWTH 5. To experience church growth especially through local congregations reaching out to neighboring urban and suburban areas in discipleship evangelism.

COMMUNITY 6. To experience true koinonia in human relationships within the Christian community.

NONCONFORMITY 7. To refocus the concept of nonconformity, emphasizing identification with Christ in simplicity of life and stewardship of resources.

HUMILITY 8. To affirm Christian humility as a quality of the Christian life crucial to peacemaking and nonconformity.

CHURCH UNITY 9. To realize the unity of the body of Christ, especially the need to integrate first-generation, younger, urban and minority congregations into the total life of the Mennonite Church.

The General Assembly responded to these with approval and the direction that the Council on Faith, Life, and Strategy and the General Board take the next steps necessary to implement them.

Conclusion

Much more could be said about what God is doing. Much detail could be added about the churchwide boards and institutions, the district conferences, and other groups not officially a part of the formal church structures. The Holy Spirit is working through all of these groups, and we need to discern what He is saying through them. One thing is sure, we need to work to maintain unity and exercise love so that all our efforts support and strengthen one another for our part in His kingdom in the eighties.

A Father in Israel

John Fretz Funk (1835-1930)

By J. C. Wenger
Professor of Historical Theology, Goshen Biblical Seminary

When John Fretz Funk was born on the ancestral farm on the Skunk Hollow road between Blooming Glen and Line Lexington, Pennsylvania, April 6, 1835, no one dreamed of the spiritual giant he was destined to become. His father was an ordinary brother in the Line Lexington congregation, but his mother, Susanna Fretz (1802-90), the second wife of Jacob Funk (1796-1875), was an unusually strong and talented woman.

Apparently it was her makeup and drive which characterized "Fretz," as he was known until he went to Chicago at 22. At that point Funk was still unconverted, although he had attended a union Sunday school as a boy and memorized 1,600 verses of the Bible. In Chicago, he attended the services of the Third Presbyterian Church, and as a result of evangelistic preaching, he got under such conviction—while on a Chicago street—on January 23, 1858, that he then and there made a complete and irrevocable surrender to Christ as his Savior and Lord.

At first he planned to become a Presbyterian, but the doctrines of believer's baptism and nonresistance caused him to return to Bucks County a year later, receive instruction from preacher John Geil, and accept baptism from Bishop Jacob Kulp in the Line Lexington meetinghouse. On January 19, 1864, he married his second cousin, Salome Kratz; she was 24 and he was 28. And on May 28 a year and four months later Bishop J. M. Brenneman ordained him as the English preacher for the little flock which worshiped in a schoolhouse at Gardner in Grundy County, Illinois. There were many facets to the contribution of John F. Funk to the Mennonite Church.

1. Funk was a good preacher. He founded the Prairie Street congregation in Elkhart, Indiana, soon after locating in Elkhart at 32 years of age. He preached mostly in English, but was able to preach in German also.

2. Funk was an able writer. His ability and courage in this area first attracted the attention of others. In 1863, at the height of the Civil War, Funk had the courage to publish a small booklet, War. Its Evils, Our Duty. While not achieving high status as an author, he served his generation well. He wrote tributes to various church leaders and prepared a major defense of the church entitled The Mennonite Church and Her Accusers, in 1878.

3. Funk was an outstanding publisher. In January, as a young man of 28, the very month of his marriage, he started two church periodicals, The Herald of Truth in English, and its twin, Der Herold der Wahrheit in German. In 1905, when Funk was about 70, Aaron Loucks, 40, and others started the publishing house at Scottdale, with Daniel Kauffman, 39, of Missouri, serving as editor of The Gospel Witness. Three years later the younger men bought out Funk, and merged the two periodicals to form the familiar Gospel Herald. (For a fuller account of Funk as a publisher, see God Uses Ink, by John A. Hostetler, Herald Press (OP). With the help of John S. Coffman, Funk provided the ministers of the church with a Minister's Manual, Confession of Faith (Dordrecht), and the Longer and Shorter Catechisms. Prodded, undoubtedly by John Horsch, he also published a German booklet by Hans Denk, Concerning True Love, not to mention the two most massive books—The Complete Works of Menno Simons (English 1871, German 1881), and the Martyrs Mirror, 1886, translated by Joseph F. Sohm (1855-1902), an Austrian who labored over the tome for three years, supported by Funk.

4. Funk was a great benefactor of the Mennonite Emigrants from Russia. In the 1870s some 18,000 Mennonites came from Russia to North America, fearing that the written promise of the Russian government to grant them military exemption "forever" was not to be trusted. (Russia did, however, establish a system of alternative service for the conscientious objectors who remained in Russia—a system which was honored for some years by the communists). Funk served as North American Treasurer for the committees created to assist the immigrants who settled all the way from Manitoba and Dakota Territory and Minnesota to Kansas and Oklahoma. He labored with amazing energy to help the brothers and sisters establish themselves in their new homes.

5. Funk was father to the Sunday school movement which had begun to flicker about 1840, then went out, only to be rekindled in the 1860s, and to burn brightly for the past hundred years—although most Sunday schools did not become "evergreen" (operate all year round) until about 1900. It was Funk's strong and unwavering support of the Sunday school which helped to assure its success after 1870.

6. Funk helped to establish an Aid Plan to assist those suffering loss by fire. Begun by the Indiana Conference, control of the organization was later exercised by the Mennonites from Russia (now General Conference Mennonites). In Indiana the organization is called "The Old Company" to this day.

7. Funk helped to establish an Evangelizing Committee. Begun by the Indiana Conference in 1882, through a series of later movements and mergers it has become the current Mennonite Board of Missions, Elkhart, Indiana.

8. Funk took the first steps toward the establishment of Mennonite General Conference, which in 1971 became the Mennonite General Assembly of the Mennonite Church.

The last decades of Funk's life had some shadows as well as great light. On January 8, 1930, he peacefully fell asleep in the Lord, a few months short of 95 years of age. Perhaps more than any one man he put his stamp on the Mennonite Church of North America.

Mennonite Church Regional Boundaries

Regional Directory of Congregations

This directory lists Mennonite Church congregations according to the region in which they are located. Within each region, congregations are listed alphabetically by state/ province and city. This directory includes all the Mennonite Church congregations which are listed in the "Conference and District Directory of Congregations." Most of these congregations are members of district conferences; however, some ("Unaffiliated Mennonite Congregations") are not related to any district or conference. Most participate in the regional activities and send delegates to the General Assembly; however, some consider themselves part of the larger Mennonite church body, but choose not to participate in the programs of the region or the General Assembly. These factors are noted at the beginning of each regional listing.

In addition, the directory includes all congregations affiliated with the Brethren in Christ, General Conference Mennonite, Mennonite Brethren, Evangelical Mennonite Brethren and the Evangelical Mennonite Conference of Canada churches. These are integrated with the Mennonite Congregations but set in italic type for ease of identification. Information listed about these congregations includes name, number, affiliation (BIC—Brethren in Christ; EMB—Evangelical Mennonite Brethren Conference; EMCC—Evangelical Mennonite Conference of Canada; GC—General Conference Mennonite; and MB—Mennonite Brethren), and location.

The geographical area, regional officers, committees, a summary of the Mennonite Church conference affiliation of congregations, membership, and a listing of delegates to Mennonite General Assembly are noted with each region. Information regarding district conference organizations, bishops/overseers, and congregations is found in the "Conference and District Directory of Congregations" section of this volume.

The purpose of this directory is to provide information regarding the meetinghouse of the congregation. It is designed to assist readers in their efforts to find or contact the congregation at its meetinghouse. Note that the location of the meetinghouse is, in most cases, not a mailing address. All mail should be directed to the office or the contact person listed under the congregation in the "Conference and District Directory of Congregation." Persons desiring to get in touch with the pastor, or contact person of a congregation, should follow the information provided in the "Conference and District Directory of Congregations." Effort was made to secure complete and accurate information about each congregation listed. If there are errors and/or if there is data missing, please provide full information to the Editor, Mennonite Yearbook, Mennonite Publishing House, 616 Walnut Ave., Scottdale, PA 15683. An example of a complete Mennonite Church congregational listing is as follows:

Conference and District Directory of Congregations

This directory lists Mennonite Church conferences alphabetically by name of conference district. Within each conference, congregations are listed alphabetically by name of congregatio Note one exception: The Conservative Mennonite Conference lists congregations alphabetical by country and state. Within each state, congregations are listed alphabetically by name. A few the conferences and districts identify with the Mennonite Church at large, but do not participa with regional planning groups nor send delegates to the General Assembly. Note that the Easte Pennsylvania Mennonite Church and the Beachy Amish are listed in separate directories later this volume.

The purpose of this directory is to provide all the information needed to contact one pers (Pastor or contact person) for a given congregation by mail or phone without needing to consu other sections of the Yearbook. This person is noted with a number 1 after the ministerial stat code. Ordained persons who carry active responsibility in the congregations are also listed wi each congregation. These carry a number 2. Ordained persons who carry district, conference, churchwide responsibilities in addition to congregational duties are designated by the number 5.

Ordained persons who are retired (number 3); those who are without congregation responsibility (number 4); chaplains (6); those serving as active missionaries overseas (number and those serving as staff members of a Mennonite Church-sponsored-or-related board, agen or program (number 9) are listed in the "Ministerial Directory" only. Note one exception: In the li ing of "Unaffiliated Mennonite Congregations," all ordained persons are included with each co gregation regardless of their ministerial function.

The mailing address and telephone number of the church office is listed for those congreg tions whose office address or telephone number is different from that of the pastor or conta person. The address and telephone number of the pastor or contact person is the home addre and number, not that of the meetinghouse or office. Information regarding the meetinghouse (cation, telephone, etc.) is provided in the "Regional Directory of Congregations" section of t volume. An example of a complete congregational listing is as follows:

Church Communities

Church communities is a broad designation for the house churches and intentional communities within the Anabaptist-Mennonite movement. Communities listed relate in a variety of ways to the Mennonite Church, as well as other churches and movements. Most communities follow a multiple-shared pattern of leadership. However, in the listing below, the name of only one person is given in order to provide a point of contact with the community. An asterisk (*) indicates that the church information is not current.

Directory of Overseas Mennonite Churches

(Related to the Mennonite Church)

This directory lists those overseas Mennonite churches which emerged out of the mission work conducted by the Mennonite Board of Missions, as well as district and conference mission boards. These overseas conferences, though independent, maintain continuing fraternal ties to the Mennonite Church in North America.

Conferences are listed alphabetically by name. Within each conference the congregations or districts are listed alphabetically by name of congregation. (A few are listed alphabetically by states or areas, then by name.) Each congregational listing includes the name of the pastor or leader. In most cases only one name is included. Others active in the leadership of the congregation are included in the "Ministerial Directory." A complete congregational listing would include the following: (See beginning of "Conference and District Directory of Congregations" for explanation of status of pastor/leader. Note that the geographical location of the meetinghouse is not a mailing address. Send all correspondence in the name of the pastor or leader whose address is found in the "Ministerial Directory" of this volume.)

Notes

[1]Full-time students, actual count.

[2]Includes some part-time in addition to full-time students. Corrected for non-reporting congregations; "totals" obtained by correction method, not by adding.

[3]First-column figures for these groups include only those congregations not holding membership in other, larger, parent conferences. Student totals are based on each student's response as to his conference; of students in the congregations with dual conference membership, some may have named and be included with the parent conference, while others are included in the newer group's totals.

[4]"Various" includes Church Communities, Northern Light Gospel Mission Conference, and Unaffiliated Mennonite congregations. Information from other groups not available.

[5]Figures for students enrolled at "Other Colleges and Universities" combine students from both Atlantic Coast and Ohio Conferences.

The Legacy of John F. Funk (1835-1930)

Exactly fifty years ago John F. Funk passed from the Mennonite scene. Yet his widespread influence through publications, historical research, peace studies, mission interests, and outreach and witness continues to this day. Indeed, the five program boards of the Mennonite Church (MC) have historical lines which go back to the direct influence of "Brother Funk" (see article by J. C. Wenger on page 8 of this volume). The following current titles published by Herald Press are indicative of Funk's spheres of interest.

Biography

Bless the Lord, O My Soul (by Helen Kolb Gates, et al.). The story of John F. Funk, and his half-century of deep influence upon the Mennonite Church.

Publishing

God Uses Ink (by John A. Hostetler). (Out of print, but available in many congregational libraries.) Depicts Funk's vision and involvement in publishing, and how the Mennonite Publishing House is continuing this vision.

Heritage and Faith

"Mennonite Faith Series." Nine booklets defining the Christian life and faith, from the standpoint of the Mennonite heritage. Includes such volumes as How Mennonites Came to Be (by J. C. Wenger) and Teaching in the Congregation (by Paul M. Lederach).

Peace

"The Christian Peace Shelf." Twenty volumes highlighting various aspects of our long peace heritage. Includes such titles as The Original Revolution (by John Howard Yoder), Coals of Fire (by Elizabeth Hershberger Bauman), War and the Gospel (by Jean Lasserre), and Christ and Violence (by Ronald J. Sider).

Mission

Gospel versus Gospel (by Theron F. Schlabach). Describes and interprets the involvement of the Mennonite Church in mission from 1863 to 1944. (Number 21 in the series "Studies in Anabaptist and Mennonite History.")

Outreach and Witness

"The John F. Funk Lectures." This series includes Making Political Decisions (by John R. Redekop and Black and Mennonite (by Hubert L. Brown).

Titles selected and annotated by Leonard Gross. All are available through Provident and other religious bookstores.
